-Give reasons for your answer and include any relevant examples from your own experience or knowledge.

ANSWER

Issues related to animal experimentation are frequently discussed these days, particularly in the media. It is often said that animals should not be used in testing because it is cruel and unnecessary. This essay will examine the arguments for and against animal testing. On the one hand, the people who support these experiments say that we must do tests on animals. For instance, many famous lifesaving drugs were invented, and animal experiments may help us find more cures in the future. Indeed, possibly even a cure for cancer and AIDS. Furthermore, the animals used are not usually wild but are bred primarily for experiments. Therefore, they believe it is not true that animal experiments are responsible for reducing the number of wild animals.

On the other hand, others feel that there are good arguments against this. First and foremost, animal experiments are unkind and cause animals pain. In addition, they feel that many tests are unnecessary, and in fact, animals are used to test new medicines and new cosmetics, which could be tested on humans instead. Another issue is that sometimes an experiment on animals gives us the wrong result because animals' bodies are not the same as our own. Consequently, this testing may not provide the safety that its proponents claim. In conclusion, I think, on balance, that the benefits do not outweigh the disadvantages, and testing on animals should not continue. Although it may improve the lives of humans, it is not fair that animals should suffer to achieve this.
